From the very moment the man had seen the old fella - serving behind the counter, that bright afternoon - he had returned to that time, some 30 years ago. Something had taken over him; propelling him forward, carrying him through, and he had not come back to his full self until the deed had been completed. A deed that would open deep, septic wounds, that had been inflicted so many decades ago. Francesca Dreighton is bright, pretty, and (aside from her boyfriend: Ford) only too content to keep to her own company. But when a letter, containing private documents and photographs, is slid under the door of her room at Rose-Mount Halls of Residence, the two university students begin on a path that will lead them into a murky, dangerous underworld.

Conspiracy and cover-ups are only part of the horrifying events that will come to light, and if she is to survive, Francesca will have to confront the monsters who are, not only coming out of the shadows to hunt her down, but who dwell within the very civility of our everyday lives. True evil is real, and it exists, not only within men, but within society itself.

In this revised and expanded edition of Bloodball, J. G. Van Tine probes the mind-set that dominates media sport. By uncovering

A time to reflect on my seventy years of life. Maybe some folks will be interested in my life and the folks I have met, or maybe not. This is a non-traditional memoir, filled with alphabetical vignettes not chronological ones. I have made a foray into fiction with an asterisk: in those cases where I have marked the vignette as fictional, it might be 100 percent not true, but in many cases I knew of, was part of, or heard from others about the story itself. At any rate, the entire book is my recollection of things past, and as in all recollections, the more distant the memory the clearer the details.
