This book explores the contribution of southern Italy and Sicily to the crusades and crusader states. By adopting the theme of identity as a tool of analysis, it argues that a far more nuanced picture emerges about the relationship than the dismissive portrayal by William of Tyre in his Chronicon, which has largely been accepted by later historians. Building upon previous scholarship in relation to Norman identity, it widens the discussion to evaluate the role of more fluid and evolving Italo-Norman and Italo-Sicilian identities, and how these shaped events. In so doing, this book also argues that the relationship between the territories needs to be considered in different dimensions: direct involvement of leaders and rulers versus indirect engagement through the geography of southern Italy and Sicily. Over time, and as identities change, these two dimensions converge, making the kingdom itself a leading participant in crusading.

has been used to create a database of 6,200 individual names from the years 1099 to 1291 which the author analyses for any trends and patterns that may relate to social change. Comparing evidence with contemporary Catholic Europe, Shagrir finds that the Franks neither adopted local ways nor maintained their own traditions, but changes in naming reflected a unique set of characteristics influenced by eastern contacts, cults and customs and a greater awareness of religious fervour.

Alexandre Dumas's classic tale of revenge and redemption, The Count of Monte Cristo "Le Comte de Monte-Cristo" is presented for the first time in English-French parallel text, complete and unabridged with over 20 black-and-white illustrations. The first of six, Volume One includes chapters 1-21: Edmond Dantes's betrayal, imprisonment and escape from Chateau d'If. It also features a touching tribute to Dumas by Countess Dash, in English and French. The Bilingual Library presents the world's classics in parallel text. Each page in the original language is mirrored by its English translation on the facing page. Introduction by series editor D. Bannon. A member of the American Literary Translators Association and the American Translators Association, Bannon has been translating since 1987.

In La Famille 13 dans l'évangile de Marc, Didier Lafleur offers an exhaustive survey of the manuscripts which belong to this Greek New Testament first order witness (f13), including the edition of the all extant members, based on quite new collations of the Gospel of Mark. - Dans La Famille 13 dans l'évangile de Marc, Didier Lafleur offre un panorama exhaustif, codicologique et philologique, de cette famille de manuscrits (f13), témoin de premier ordre du Nouveau Testament grec.

présentées au Colloque Proust en Italie qui s'est tenu à l'Université de Caen Basse-Normandie les 20 et 21 juin 2003. Ces études ont pour objet des lectures critiques de l'œuvre de Proust proposées dans la péninsule au cours du XXe siècle ainsi que les influences littéraires exercées par la Recherche sur des poètes et des écrivains italiens. Les deux premières interventions brossent un tableau général de cette réception critique et littéraire, notamment dans l'entre-deux-guerres. Suivent des études approfondies portant sur la critique de Proust chez Giacomo Debenedetti, Giuseppe Antonio Borgese et Giovanni Macchia comme sur les contacts, thématiques ou formels, entre la Recherche et l'œuvre d'écrivains tels qu'Italo Svevo, Attilio Bertolucci et Giorgio Bassani. Les deux dernières interventions concernent la critique italienne de Proust des années 1980-1990, le travail accompli chez Mondadori pour la nouvelle édition de la Recherche et les débats avec la critique française contemporaine autour de l'établissement du texte d'Albertine disparue.

This rich volume by an interdisciplinary group of American and European scholars offers an innovative portrait of the complex formation of clerical and confessional identities within the context of the radically changed religious and political situations in sixteenth- and seventeenth-century Europe.

This major two-volume study offers an interdisciplinary analysis of Montaigne's Essais and their fortunes in early modern Europe and the modern western university. Volume one focuses on contexts from within Montaigne's own milieu, and on the ways in which his book made him a patron-author or instant classic in the eyes of his editor Marie de Gournay and his promoter Justus Lipsius. Volume two focuses on the reader-writers across Europe who used the Essais to make their own works, from corrected editions and translations in print, to life-writing and personal records in manuscript. The two volumes work together to offer a new picture of the book's significance in literary and intellectual history. Montaigne's is now usually understood to be the school of late humanism or of Pyrrhonian scepticism. This study argues that the school of Montaigne potentially included everyone in early modern Europe with occasion and means to read and write for themselves and for their friends and family, unconstrained by an official function or scholastic institution. For the Essais were shaped by a battle that had intensified since the Reformation and that would continue through to the pre-Enlightenment period. It was a battle to regulate the educated individual's judgement in reading and acting upon the two books bequeathed by God to man. The book of scriptures and the book of nature were becoming more accessible through print and manuscript cultures. But at the same time that access was being mediated more intensively by teachers such as clerics and humanists, by censors and institutions, by learned authors of past and present, and by commentaries and glosses upon those authors. Montaigne enfranchised the unofficial reader-writer with liberties of judgement offered and taken in the specific historical conditions of his era. The study draws on new ways of approaching literary history through the history of the book and of reading. The Essais are treated as a mobile, transnational work that travelled from Bordeaux to Paris and beyond to markets in other countries from England and Switzerland, to Italy and the Low Countries. Close analysis of editions, paratexts, translations, and annotated copies is informed by a distinct concept of the social context of a text. The concept is derived from anthropologist Alfred Gell's notion of the 'art nexus': the specific types of actions and agency relations mediated by works of art understood as 'indexes' that give rise to inferences of particular kinds. Throughout the two volumes the focus is on the particular nexus in which a copy, an edition, an extract, is embedded, and on the way that nexus might be described by early-modern people. Massimo Bontempelli (1878-1960) est le théoricien et le principal représentant italien du "réalisme magique"; son style d'écriture devance la production latino-américaine des Garcia Marquez et Allende et prépare le post-moderne de Paul Auster. Écrivain éclectique, son œuvre se déploie sur plus d'une quarantaine d'années, au cours desquelles il s'est produit en tant que romancier, dramaturge, nouvelliste, essayiste, critique d'art et journaliste. En raison de son adhésion initiale au fascisme (dont il s'éloignera) et malgré la mise en résidence forcée que Mussolini lui imposera, Bontempelli connaîtra un déclin, consécutif à une méfiance intellectuelle à son égard qui s'est répercutée jusqu'à nos jours. Les contributions ici réunies soulignent le rôle culturel que cet intellectuel joua à son époque parmi les siens. Les spécialistes de cet auteur se sont penchés sur l'ensemble de son œuvre multiforme (l'écriture narrative, les pièces de théâtre, les critiques d'art...) selon des modalités d'approche diverses, permettant de mettre en valeur le talent polyvalent de cet écrivain et de retrouver les multiples échos bontempelliens dans les perspectives littéraires ouvertes par ce précurseur presque méconnu.

family and reproductive - haviour of Mediterranean Europe 1. THE NEW GEOGRAPHY OF FERTILITY AND THE FAMILY IN EUROPE The countries of southern Europe have begun to reduce conjugal fertility at a later date compared to most other nations in the west. This has been - plained by means of the category of delay: the backwardness of the pr- esses of accumulation and economic development being seen as the cause of the maintaining of the reproductive models of the past. Moreover, the inf- ence of the Catholic Church in Italy, Spain and Portugal is supposed to have delayed the processes of secularisation, rendering difficult the changes in mentality necessary for assuming modern patterns of reproductive behaviour not only for fertility, but also for the variables which are strictly linked to it, such as sexuality, contraception and abortion (Livi Bacci, 1977; Lesthaeghe and Wilson, 1986). 1. 1. The trends of very low fertility Now the panorama is very different. Since the mid-seventies, southern Europe has been washed by the tide of a lowest-low fertility (i. e. , TFR under 1. 5 for several a prolonged period, Billari et al. , 2003), which in some areas 1 has reached and maintained scarcely imaginable levels for years on end. Conversely, other areas of Europe, where fertility started to fall many d- ades earlier than in the regions of the sournth, have recovered or maintained considerably higher levels of fertility, often close to replacement level.
